Idaho Asylum Scandal Causes Much Talk.

STATEMENT FOR BOARD.

IT OFFERED DR. MOORE AN INVESTIGATION.

Dr. Givens' Appointment Was on the Square—Heavy Frosts Injure Crops in Southern Idaho—Colorado Hunters Can Kill But One Deer Each—Cheyenne Wants the Next Irrigation Congress.

(Special to The Herald.)

Pocatello, Ida., Sept. 18.—The matter of the insane asylum scandal which has caused such commotion among the various political factions and, indeed, the people of Idaho generally, is about to receive a thorough ventilation. The friends of Dr. Moore, the deposed superintendent of that institution, still vigorously maintain that his removal in favor of Dr. Givens was the result of a political job, and that Givens' appointment was in discharge of a political obligation of Governor Stevenson.

Mr. J. M. Bennett, chairman of the asylum board, has been interviewed in regard to the matter, in which he declares that any political motive actuated the board in making the appointment, and says that the removal of Dr. Moore was forced upon them.

Mr. Bennett says: "In regard to Dr. Moore, I desire only to say the board offered him any investigation he desired, and that the offer is still open. To Dr. Moore's friends I will say that they had better walk and let the demand come from him. This is all I desire to say on the matter, and I do not believe that the board will care to make any further statement unless the demand comes from Dr. Moore himself."

In commenting upon this interview, the Pocatello Tribune says editorially: "Mr. Bennett's statement in regard to the removal of Dr. Moore as superintendent seems to be final, and must satisfy Dr. Moore's friends if it satisfies Dr. Moore. In regard to the charges of dishonesty against Dr. Givens, however, Mr. Bennett's statement cannot be satisfactory to the people of Idaho. Dr. Givens stands charged with converting the property of the asylum to his own uses upon the affidavit of a reputable citizen of Blackfoot. Other charges against his integrity have been published, and we understand are in existence over the signature of one of the best citizens and most respectable men of that town. The matter is a public scandal, and the asylum board must sit them to the bottom if it wishes to retain the confidence of the people."

He Was No Populist.

Buffalo Express: "Stranger in Buffalo?" asked the barber insinuatingly, as the old soldier settled in his chair. "Yes, sir," answered the customer. "I'm from Ohio, the greatest state in the Union."

"Ohio is a great state," agreed the barber, reflectively. "You bet it is," said the Ohio man. "It's the mother of Grant, Sherman, Hayes, Garfield and McKinley."

"Garfield, too?" said the barber. "I'd forgotten that he came from Ohio." "Yes," Garfield was an Ohio man; used to drive mules on the canal." "My! Guess you're right about Ohio being the mother of all the great men there are," exclaimed the barber, admiringly. "Ohio was the mother of Cooey, too, wasn't she?"

The customer sprang up in his chair and glared at the barber as if he were a rebel brawler about to be charged upon.

"Young man," he said, as the terrified wielder of razors dropped his lathe brush on the floor, "did you hear me ask for a hair cut? I say, sir, I didn't ask for a hair cut, did I?"

"N-n-n-o, sir," gasped the barber. "Well, sir, you wait till you get hold of an Ohio man who needs a hair cut before you ask him that question."

This Dog Travels on a Pass.

Philadelphia Record: The only dog enjoying the privileges of a pass over the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania railroad is a little fox terrier who makes his home about the station at Riverton, N. J. He knows no master, but every day he makes at least one trip by rail. He usually rides in the baggage car, and only travels with him, taking pains not to force his company on any baggage master or conductor from whom he receives unfriendly treatment. Yesterday morning he boarded the train due at Riverton a few minutes before 8 o'clock, taking a ride as far as Riverside, and returning on the 9:05. In the afternoon he rode to Camden, honoring the 2:15 train with his presence. The dog is well known by the employee at the different stations, for he has visited nearly every one of them. Sometimes he will be gone for a whole day, but usually alights from one of the trains before nightfall.

a clue. They ransacked a private desk without finding anything to which they attached any importance, and Pinkerton had turned to leave the room when Macbeth spied in one corner of the desk a public library card issued in the name of the man for whom they were looking. He observed by the entries on the card that several books had been taken from the library within a period of a month, and that the date of the return of one of the books corresponded with the date of the issuing of another. He put this card in his pocket and left the office in company with the detective. After they were in the street the detective said: "Why do you take that library card?" "I have an idea," Macbeth answered, "and I want to go at once to the public library."

An examination of the card showed that the missing man had procured 14 different books, and a comparison of the numbers on the cards with the titles of the books, at the library, revealed the subjects he had been studying. The first book taken was entitled, "A Trip to Nicaragua," the second, "A History of Nicaragua," and nearly all others related to Central America.

"He has gone to Central America," said Pinkerton.

"That's right," Macbeth answered, "and it's not too late yet to catch him at New Orleans."

Telegrams were sent to the Crescent City giving full descriptions of the man and the next day he was arrested in the office of a steamship company while waiting for his turn at the ticket window. He would have sailed a few hours later for Central America.
